

June 9th, 2024 - Pastor Chadwick Anderson
Beyond the Acts: With Open Hearts; Acts 16:9-15

Is your _____ tied to what you've done so far, what you plan to do next, or is it tied to your loving _____ to me today?

“Make me what You will, Lord, and place me where You will. Whatever role you have for me in serving You and Your Kingdom work in Christ, I am content. Whether the world takes notice, or my life passes quietly in the background, as long as I am being used by you – it is what I desire. Whatever part you have for me in the body of Christ, even if it's considered one of the lowest and least desirable, I am your servant.

Whatever you need me to do, alongside whomever you need me to join; whether it's acts of service, joining in suffering, activity now or being set apart for later. Whether it brings attention and Glory for your Name, or I'm walked on because of following you, I want to be full for you. I want to be emptied for you. Let me have all that I have for you. Let me be content with nothing, for you. With everything I am, I let go of it all for your pleasure and use.” (John Wesley Covenant Service, Modern Translation)

Joining the _____ heart of Jesus always begins with knowing His heart, and responding to the _____ of others.

Do you know His _____? Do you know their _____?

The good news here was that no _____ was worth claiming, short of being a follower of Jesus.

Why would God ever not _____ someone's _____ to respond to the message of His Love?

God _____ the heart of Pharaoh.

God will not force His Loving Kingdom to be embraced or enjoyed, even as it must be _____.

What would it look like if God strengthened your _____ as it currently stands?