Beyond the Acts: Our Citizenship; Acts 22:22-30

When was the last time you _____ someone's entire existence or value as a human down to one particular aspect of their _____?

When we begin with the assumption we're _____ someone, we cannot imagine God being actively present in their lives.

"From age fourteen on, our brain begins to consider the survival of " _____ " more important than "my survival". (Wilder, Renovated)

We have increased compassion when we can honestly confess the _____ of our condition.

Appealing to the authority of government is not the same as putting our _____ in the authority of the government.

"Jesus chooses to ask a question 307 times in the gospel accounts. Even if Jesus gives direct answers to as many as 8 questions, that still means that Jesus is almost 40 times more likely to ask a question than he is to give a direct answer." (Copenhaver, Jesus is the Question)

A _____ has more potential than a statement, to invite transformation.

1. Appealing to a higher authority does not _____ our present situation.>>
2. Appealing itself humbles us and _____ us as those in need.
3. We appeal as those _____ into our true citizenship.
  - a. Philippians 3:20

We may have opposing _____, but we are not on opposing _____.

We are citizens of a _____ that is not threatened by any particular political moment.
